The State Finances. ROW TO RAISE ADDITIONAL REVENUE.

I have shown in the preceding papers that about $181,000 is necessary to be raised in addition to that at present collected to pay four per cept, interest on the whole debt, about $700,000 in addition to pay the propose to indicate first some reforms that can easily be effected whereby these sims can at once be raised without touching First. 1 propose to subject to taxation all property now exempt except actual church idings. The property of literary, beneical, and other societies is now exempt, and subjecting it to taxation we should get from five to ten million of property, and out twenty-five to fifty the usand dollars of posecuting criminals, paying witnesses, &c., w costs the State $120,000 per annum, which ought to be borne by localities where the prosecutions take place. Under the riet watch kept over such expenses then the expense would not be one-third as great and by these two simple reforms, which are manifestly fair and just, we should get $150,

A fruitful source of revenue in this State the tax imposed on trade and commerce by the cities in their licenses for brokers, rehants, liquor dealers, &c. There are no tatistics from which we can get an idea of the amount raised by all the cities of the Common wealth, but it must be very large. This revenue ought to be resumed possesion of by the State. It alone ought to issue censes, and its license ought to authorize the party paying for it to transact business ut being subjected to another tax from city or town. A system of graduated on which the amount to be paid would be regulated by the population of the community in which the business would be transacted, would yield four times as much income as the present license system. The parties paying for licenses would gladly pay a larger fee to the State than be subjected. as they now are, to an additional charge from the city. Such a charge would be easy and popular with those who pay licenses. The tax on commercial and legal paper which has just been released by the General advantageously. I have before me the statement of Colonel Woolford, the Comptroller of Maryland, which shows that a similar tax in Maryland realized, in 1850, $52,579.75; 1851, $53,397.79;

Government could be used by the State most

Now, in 1852 the population of Maryland was about 600,000. Therefore this tax was about ten cents per capita. At the same methods of transacting business would produce a greater income from such a tax. It would be mainly paid directly by the cities and towns, and would come out of the country districts so imperceptibly that they

The subject of taxation which is most inbecause a pure luxury, and which ould be paid with least inconvenience, is the tax on liquors. It is estimated that the consumption of liquor in Virginia annually $12,000,000. Ten per cent, on that $1,200,000, and together with a stamp tax enough to pay the whole interest on the I believe the easiest and best way to reach liquor is by a system of licenses, to be traducted according to population, and to e paid monthly or quarterly as may be

The license tax would be so large that the design could not pay it for a whole year in advance, and therefore this tax might be collected monthly in the form of a license to be Another source of revenue is the excessive interest paid by citizens of the State on refesses to regulate the rate of indoes not in fact regulate it, and nity to fling down a pile of calico, &c. money brings its price in the market regardless of law. I propose to get a portion of this excessive interest for the State by providing for the chartering of a system of State banks which should be authorized to charge interest received by them over six per cent. into the State treasury.

Such a system of banks would draw capital to the State when it could be legally employed at high rates, without the risk that eat into the business of those banks which are now exacting such usurious rates. Instead of State banks thus authorized to charge extra interest, we might collect the tax on such extra interest by a system of stamps to be affixed to the evidences of debt. Thus we might charge, as they did in Maryd, at the rate of five cents on the hundred dollars for all paper discounted at or bearing interest at the rate of six per cent., which stamp-tax should be charged on all Japer, commercial and legal; and besides that, we might have a different kind of stamps, to be called extra-interest stamps, which should be affixed to all paper discounted, sold, or guaranteed at a rate higher than six per cent. Without such stamp affixed it would be provided that the paper could not be used in evidence, or that no recovery could be had on it for the principal. These stamps might be regulated so as to represent a certain tax as so much per month on the paper, and with these affixed it would be legal to discount, sell, or guarantee paper at any rate that might be agreed

The community would thus have the benefit of a portion of the extra legal interest now enjoyed by the lender alone, and the borrower would pay no more for money if as much as he now pays.

The interest he pays now is: First, the rate allowed by law; second, the additional market value of the money he borrows; and third, an additional sum to pay for the risk the lender runs in lending him money con- M. By this arrangement this third ceiver in the Petersburg bank cases. ingredient of interest would be wanting, for the lender would run no risk, and therefore could not charge for it; and the borrower State as he has heretofore paid by way of

If he does call it up for action, and does not want it recommitted, he withdraws the motion to recommit and moves the previous question on the passage of the bill.

Judge Harris on Civil Rights. Washington, January 6 .- The following is an extract from the speech of Judge Harris, of Virginia, in the House yesterday, as published verbatim in the Congressional

"Now, Mr. Speaker, I know the objection that will occur to the mind of every gentleevery one here who differs from me on this question. They will say this is prejudiceunjust prejudice. Admit that it is prejudice. yet the fact exists, and you as a member of Congress and legislator are bound to respect that prejudice. It was born in the children of the South, born in our ancestors, and born in your ancestors in Massachusetts. that the colored man was inferior to the white." Mr. Ransier (colored member): "I deny

Mr. Harris: "I do not allow you to interrupt me. Sit down. I am talking to white men. I am talking to gentlemen."

The Speaker refused to hear Mr. Ransier and Mr. Harris proceeded.

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR RELLOGG-THE STATE DEBT. ETC. NEW OBLEANS, January 6 .- Governor Kel logg, in the course of his message, says the total debt of the State is $24,283,336. Some of this was of doubtful legality, and was being tested in the courts. The State hid tried to pay the interest on this whole amount, and had done so up to date, but could do so no longer without maintaining a rate of taxation which was almost confisciof the result of their conduct. A NEW ELECTION FAVORED AND URGED. WASHINGTON, January 6 .- Moderate Republicans and Liberals openly declared in favor of a new election in Louisiana as the only solution of the unfortunate situation of affairs in that State. Among the most outspoken in this direction are Messrs. Carpenter, Ferry (of Connecticut), Edmunds, Sumner, Fenton, and Schurz. Senator Carpenter had a long interview with the President this morning. It is understood that Mr.

Carpenter urged the above line of policy.

Rescue of Shipwreeked Mariners. PHILADELPHIA, January 6 .- The schoone David Nicholson has arrived from Bruns wick, Ga., having on board the captain second mate, and four men of the schoone Guy R. Phelps, from Savannah for New York, taken from the wreck, which was capsized on the 26th ultimo, at which time the first mate and steward were drowned. When rescued the men bad been five days

Weather Probabilities. Washington, January 6 .-- For New England and the Middle Atlantic States, continued cloudy weather and rain, with less pressure and but slight changes of temperature, the winds on the immediate coast increasing in force,

For the lewer lake region, and thence southward over the Chio valley and Tennessee, continued cloudy weather, with snow or rain during the night and a portion of the day, with a slight rise of temperature and fresh to brisk northerly to westerly winds. For the South Atlantic and Gulf States east of the Mississippi river, cloudy weather and rain, with but slight changes of temper rature, probably clearing in the Lower Mississippi Valley during Wednesday.

The Alleghany, the Monongahela, and Great Kanawha rivers will rise rapidly during Wednesday, and freshets are anticipated at Oil City, Freeport, Confluence Morgantown, New Geneva, and Brownsville The Ohio river will rise decidedly at Pittsburgh and Marietta.

The Centennial-The Pensylvania Constitution. HARRISBURG, PA., January 6.- The report of the special commissioners to Vienna to the State Legislature recommends an appropriation of $1,000,000 in aid of the Philadel phia centennial, and dwells on the advantage that would accrue to the city and State. At a caucus of the Democratic senators it was informally resolved that the new Constitution went into operation on the 1st January.

Railroad Matters. BETHLEHEM, PA., January 6 .- A convenon of general freight officers of the principal railroads in Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey was organized here to-day. The meeting was held with closed doors, but it is understood that the revision of freight rates and the classification of trade are to be finally disposed of at this meeting. The bearing of the new Constitution upon the railway interests has been pretty generally canvassed during the morning, and the general opinion is that it will not materially change the existing system. Journalistic-A Postmaster on Trial. Mobile, January 6 .- It is rumored on the street that the Mobile Register changes hands to-morrow, John L. Rapier, a wellknown citizen, becoming the sole proprietor. Colonel John Forsyth will remain as editor-in-chief. The trial of John J. Moulton, the late post master here, is progressing in the United States Court, Judge Woods presiding.

Caba. HAVANA, January 5 .- The crowns on the sterns of Spanish vessels, which had been covered with paint, are restored. The Home Government has granted without restriction the extraordinary powers demanded by the Captain-General. The Conservative party here are highly delighted with the change of Government t Madrid. The boatmen of the bay have struck for payment in gold, and communication between the town and shipping is difficult for passengers. It is rumored that the insurgents have taken the Spanish Colonel Montaner prisoner.
